CURRENT SITUATION

The global economy is unstable now. Big countries are showing low index growth, companies like Google and Twitter have faced major layoffs and major crypto exchanges have gone bankrupt..

With the combination of persistent inflation, tighter financial conditions and weaker global growth, it will be enough to tip the economy into a mild recession in the first half of 2023.

The IMF projects that global growth will fall to 2.7% in 2023 which would be the weakest year since 2001.

" In our view, 2023 will potentially be a great vintage for alternative investments. Higher interest rates have caused a repricing of private assets amid much higher borrowing costs."

For suitable investors, we believe certain strategies may offer diversified ways to enhance portfolio income. As an alternative investment option, diamonds are tangible assets that have the ability to hedge against the inflation and they do not fluctuate in a volatile manner in comparison to other currencies.

Investing in rare colored diamonds is an excellent, reliable and constantly growing investment for short-term as well as long-term investors.

SOLUTION: POTENTIAL IN DIAMONDS

*Diamonds have always represented two great powers: Wealth and Passion. That being said, there has always been a hidden third dimension to it all, the dimension of Investment

This third dimension of investment has been looked at by many as a form of capital preservation and an increase of real wealth. Throughout history, diamonds have been used as a hedge against political and economic instability and have been growing rapidly as an alternative investment opportunity.

In diamonds rarity equals value. The rarer stones are considered reliable investments and have proven to continually go up in value through the years. Colored Diamonds in particular allow the diversification of an investment portfolio allowing the investor to off-set against weaker long term returns.

As global circumstances remain unstable in modern times, investors are showing an increasing awareness in the strengths of a diamond as a medium of personal asset protection.

Diamonds, especially Natural Fancy Color Diamonds, are also the highest concentration of wealth of any real asset in existence today.

SUPPLY & DEMAND

Are diamond price increases a short, or sustainable long term trend?

Due to the predicted Supply / Demand imbalance in gemstone diamonds, and the progressive increase in prices of fancy colored diamonds over the past 30 years, there should be a continued steady price appreciation over the medium and long term.

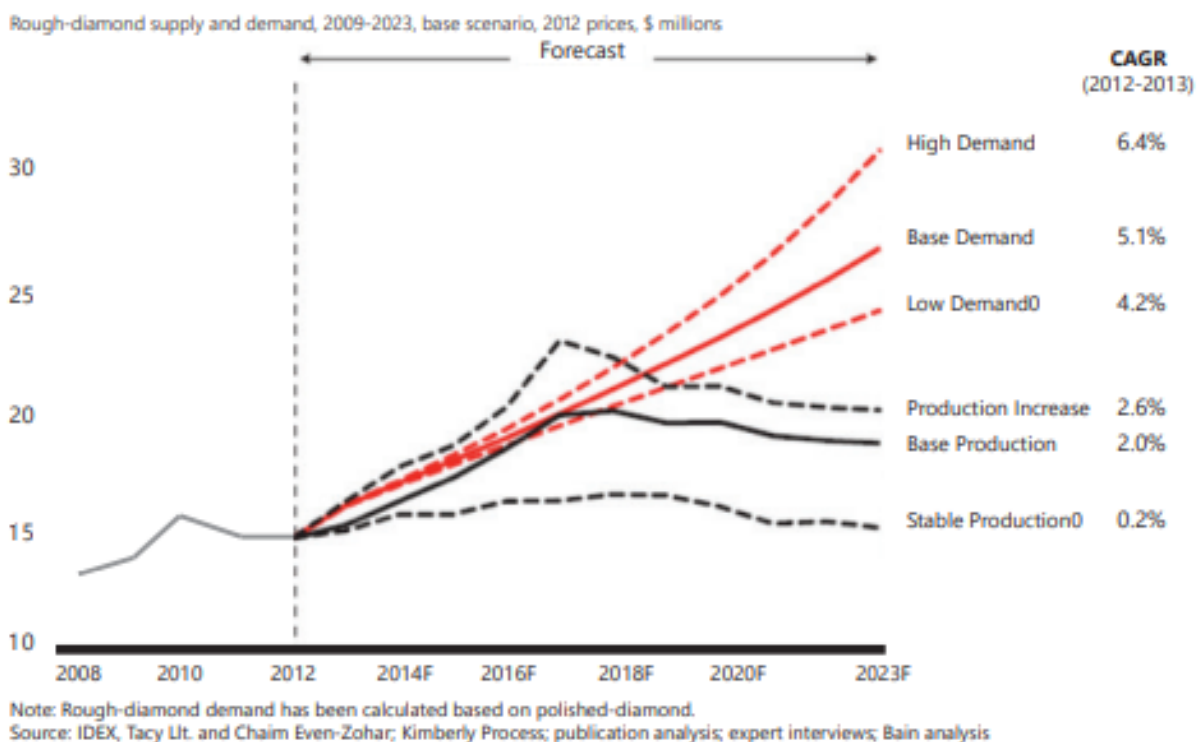

How can the potential demand by the investment community affect the current Supply & Demand of diamonds?

Bain & Company (2013) reported in "Journey through the value chain", that:

- 1) The diamond investment market retains its allure
- 2) Investors continue searching for the best way to capitalize on the growth in diamond prices
- 3) Diamonds, like gold and platinum, are destined to become a significant alternative investment

Diversify your investment portfolio with alternative hard assets with high ROI

With guaranteed appreciation value, diamonds make for great luxury investments which thrive in plain sight
